Dear Lederberg:

I am very glad to know that you will take part in next summer's Symposium. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will reimburse you for your out-of-pocket expenses, within the limits noted in my previous letter, upon receipt of signed travel expense vouchers, which they will furnish.

The program for this Symposium was prepared by an organizing committee consisting of people who have spent many years in research with viruses. Since the emphasis is on the experimental and quantitative aspects of the problem, an effort was made to cover this phase of the work and it was necessary to omit many interesting aspects because of time limitations.

As indicated on the preliminary program, which you have received, there will be about twenty papers presented. This program also shows the names of people who have been specifically invited to take part in discussions. As you know, the discussions are open to all who attend the meetings, but the organizers felt that we should be certain that key people would be present; and this year, through the generosity of the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, we are able to afford to invite them. Discussers will not be listed on the final printed program. A few of the discussers are being requested to prepare a brief manuscript of their discussion, which will be published in the volume as an independent paper. The organizing committee feels that your discussion should be included as a brief paper. Therefore I will appreciate it if you will send me a manuscript by June 1. It is proposed that discussions last about 10 or 15 minutes, and that the manuscripts should not exceed 5 printed pages in length. Enclosed is a copy of the instructions for preparation of manuscripts.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

M. Demerec
